Don't know if they have studied mode split. I will ask and see if Charmaine knows… but I think they are focused more narrowly on TDM measures.

Joe,

Regarding the highlighted bullet point below from Wade's outline, are you familiar with City College's most recent transportation surveying efforts? Does Fehr and Peers have mode split data more recent than the Balboa Area TDM study?

- Describe travel behavior at city college and parking lot
  - Unknown users of the parking lot; people other than using city college may use the lot during that period
  - Describe any mode split surveys for students and faculty (source: Balboa Area TDM Plan Existing Conditions Report, Chapter 4 [default.sfplanning.org]; others?)

Thanks

Thank you Karl.
I would like to discuss parking under the "Other Transportation Concerns" agenda item.
Also, I am on vacation December 17 through January 2nd. It should not affect the schedule, based on current schedule for deliverables.

This message is from outside the City email system. Do not open links or attachments from untrusted sources.

All: Here is the agenda for Thursday's Balboa Reservoir Project meeting. Attendance is optional except for the core project team members, including transportation folks.

We will discuss Transportation first, and then we can discuss whether any of the transportation-related scoping comments require additional analysis beyond that already contemplated so that the EP transportation planners and Kittelson can jump off once those topics are complete. To facilitate this second item, I attach a version of the Scoping Comments spreadsheet that Susan sent out last week in which the individual comments (the vast majority) are sorted by topic.

Thank you.
