Hi Susan,

I received the FedEx USB card this morning. Thank you for the shipment.

I just found the original USB card that was included with the original Volume 1 shipment on my (cluttered) kitchen table! So you were absolutely right when you said that you had checked for presence of the card prior to shipment.

My apologies for my carelessness in failing to detect the card from the git go. Sorry to have made you go through extra trouble!

So that your efforts aren't wasted, I will give the extra card to another interested party.

Best,

Susan!

I was perfectly willing to wait for snail mail!

However, since the deed is done, I won't let it go to waste. I'm sure I can give it to someone else who wants it.

Thank you for going above and beyond the call of duty!

Best,
aj

Alvin,

The USB card was sent via first class mail on Tuesday afternoon. You should receive it by today.

In the meantime, volume 2 can also be accessed from this link.

Hi Susan,

RE: "I'm any case we will send this via regular first class mail on Tuesday"

I still haven't received the USB card. Could you confirm that it was sent?

Thanks,

Alvin

last message was sent out before I had finished. Anyway.....

I checked again. Nothing in plastic pocket. Flipped through the pages...Nada.

Checked empty FedEx package.....Empty.

For whatever reason (I am not assigning blame or responsibility), I don't have the USB card.

Thanks for sending it out again, Susan.

Hello Alvin,

The USB card should be attached to the inside back cover; please check again. Also you could just download the files from this link:

To reduce risks to outside service providers, we are aiming to limit distribution by mail. If you still require the USB card to be mailed to you, please let us know, and Susan will arrange to have one sent to you via regular first class mail tomorrow.

Thanks,

Jeanie

I checked the hard copies and they did have the usb card attached to the inside back cover ..perhaps he didn't see it or it fell out in the box (?). I'm any case we will send this via regular first class mail on Tuesday (he could also just download the files from the EP website).

Susan, Jeanie,

Thanks for shooting that colossus of an RTC to me so quickly. It works well for weight training!

The FedEx package did not contain the USB card for Volume 2. Neither was it in the plastic pocket within Volume 1.

Please send me the Volume 2 USB card to correct the oversight.

Thanks,

Subject: Reservoir EIR Transit Delay Re: RTC

Thanks, Jeanie.

QUESTION: Before basically dismissing my transit delay comments, weren't your analysts interested in understanding transit delay from a MUNI Operations standpoint (vs. a Planners standpoint)?!

Did they even bother to talk to any of the Operators taking their layovers at City College Terminal? How about the Inspectors who deal with line management?

It's obvious to me that the Planners' operational knowledge is limited when they conflate "stops" with "timepoints."

Also, Planning Dept understanding of "substantial evidence" is faulty:

- I had presented an analysis of 43 delay from timepoint to timepoint based on Kittelson data. My analysis apparently was dismissed as lacking "substantial evidence." Yet because my analysis (based on your own Kittelson data and official SFMTA schedules) was unfavorable to your less-than-significant determination, the SEIR has been revised to conveniently eliminate the City College Terminal to BP Station segment from EIR analysis of the 43's 7-minute running time timepoint-to-timepoint (Monterey /Genessee to Balboa tPark Station) segment.
- I had challenged the SEIR's misuse of the City Charter's 4-minute late standard for scheduled timepoints as your Significance Criterion for Transit Delay. The RTC refers to the Planning Dept's Transit Impact Assessment Guidelines as "substantial evidence" to justify using 4-minute delay as the threshold of significance. In a careful reading of the TIA Guidelines, the 4-minute transit delay standard is simply an assertion, containing not even a shred of evidence that would support the assertion. Using common sense, how could a 4 minute delay within a 7-minute running time route segment be objectively considered "less-than-significant"?!

An EIR is supposed to be an objective analysis. However, actually it's similar to the run-up to the Iraq War: The facts were being fixed around the policy.

Sincerely,

Alvin Ja
